Who We Are:

Hospital Medicine is a unique specialty composed of physicians leading, directing, and improving inpatient care with the patient at the center. The Hospitalist Service, established at Brigham and Women's Hospital in 1998, has expanded to include the medical consult service and four general medical teams, which include the PACE service. We also care for patients at Faulkner Hospital. The BWF Hospitalist Service is staffed by physicians and physician assistants, trained in internal medicine and other medical specialties.

Hospitalist Mission:

- To promote high quality, efficient, comprehensive inpatient care for hospitalized patients of any primary care physician who requests service.
- To excel as educators in conveying the principles of evidence based inpatient medicine to students, residents, colleagues and patients.

Benefits:

- Close communication
  - Seamless communication along the continuum of care
  - Treatment plan, medication changes, follow-up tests, discharge plans, and issues that need monitoring
  - Daily reports via your choice of e-mail, telephone, or fax
- Patient and Family Focused Communication
  - Easy access for patients and families during daytime hours
  - Fast response to labs, tests, and emergent situations
  - Immediately available after discharge in case of problems, especially before follow-up appointment
- Efficient and timely inpatient care
- More time for your outpatient practice
